Per Holmberg, Head of Wine for Christie's New York, noted: "Collectors were on the hunt for the best vintages of DRC on Saturday, with assortment cases from the coveted 1990s vintages dominating the top prices of the day. Bordeaux was not far behind, with star vintages of Pétrus in original wood cases also among the top ten lots by price. As we have seen all this fall season at Christie's New York, demand for fine and rare Bordeaux has remained steady overall, while Burgundy, Rhone and California cults continue to draw in greater numbers of new collectors worldwide. With our global calendar of wine sales now completed, we look forward to a new year of wine sales in 2013 including an expanded roster of our popular Online-Only wine sales to supplement our calendar of live, saleroom-based auctions."
