The Van Cliburn Collection

EXCEPTIONAL ENGLISH FURNITURE,
RUSSIAN WORKS OF ART, SILVER, AND
JEWELRY TO BE OFFERED AT CHRISTIE'S
NEW YORK ON MAY 17

“After a concert I would buy something to give me a tangible memory;
for music and memory are indestructible.”

-Van Cliburn

New York- On May 17, Christie's is honored to present a sale of over 160 exceptional works from the personal collection of Van Cliburn, one of America's greatest pianists. The collection comprises superb examples of English furniture, Russian Works of Art, Silver and Jewelry reflecting Mr. Cliburn's refined taste and the private passion of a sophisticated connoisseur. With estimates ranging from $1,000 to $250,000, the total sale is expected to achieve in excess of $3 million.

William Strafford, Head of Private Collections, and Capera Ryan, Senior Vice President, Managing Director, Southwest Region, comment: “It is a tremendous honor for Christie's to be holding this spectacular sale on behalf of Van Cliburn, a national treasure whose constant pursuit of beauty is reflected not only in his exquisite piano playing but also in the superb works of art he acquired for his personal collection.”

Van Cliburn

Van Cliburn (b. 1934) is one of America's greatest pianists and a persuasive ambassador for American culture. Since his historic 1958 victory at the first International Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow, Mr. Cliburn has reached across political frontiers through the universal language of music. In that same year, he appeared on the cover of Time Magazine who billed him "The Texan Who Conquered Russia." Born in Shreveport, Louisiana, he began piano studies at age three and was twelve when he made his orchestral debut with the Houston Symphony Orchestra. After graduating from Kilgore High School, he studied at The Juilliard School in New York City. Mr. Cliburn has received more than twenty honorary doctoral degrees and inspired a group of Fort Worth music teachers and private citizens to establish the Van Cliburn Foundation*. He has provided scholarships at many schools worldwide and has performed for every President of the United States since Harry Truman, as well as for royalty and heads of state in Europe, Asia, and South America. He has received the Kennedy Center Honors, Grammy Lifetime Achievement Award, Order of Friendship from Russian President Vladimir Putin, Presidential Medal of Freedom, and recently honored with the National Medal of Arts by President Barack Obama.

Highlights include:

The Cliburn Steinway Piano

This Steinway concert grand piano has always been at the center of the Cliburn home. It is the instrument played by Van's mother Rildia Bee, and where he spent a considerable amount of his musical life practicing and working. This piano is being sold to honor of Rildia Bee with proceeds benefiting The Juilliard School, New York and The Moscow Conservatory, Moscow, the almae matres of Van Cliburn.

English Furniture

Mr. Cliburn's extraordinary English furniture collection was formed under the attentive guidance of Alistair Stair, proprietor of the legendary firm of Stair & Company. While Alistair may have sparked an interest in the field, the objects chosen by Mr. Cliburn reflect the keen sensibility of its owner. Like many seasoned collectors, he gravitates to seat furniture above all other forms. The rich array of chairs, stools and settees are a sweeping survey of 18th century English design – refined early Georgian forms, the whimsical Chinese and Gothic flavor of Thomas Chippendale's time and the refined classical language of later years – all represented by rare and exceptional examples.

Among the earlier examples is the spectacular pair of George I walnut and marquetry side chairs (estimate: $70,000-100,000), attributed to the Royal cabinet-maker James Moore, and almost certainly supplied for majestic Shobden Court in around 1720. Mid-18th century carved mahogany and walnut furniture, highly sought after by collectors today, is highlighted by a George II walnut armchair of circa 1740-45 (estimate: $80,000-120,000), attributed to the maker Giles Grendey, with bold shell-carved back and lion arms. An early George III giltwood suite of circa 1760-65 with beautiful needlework depicting flowers and Chinese vases, comprising two side chairs (estimate: $60,000-90,000), a settee (estimate: $80,000-120,000) and a fire screen ($8,000-12,000), is likely to have been commissioned by the 6th Earl of Coventry – a notably enthusiastic and discerning patron – who was actively refurbishing Croome Court as well as his fashionable London houses after coming to the title in 1751. The sophisticated classicism of the late 18th century is represented in a pair of chairs (estimate: $60,000-100,000) and settee (estimate: $25,000-40,000), attributed to the top London makers Mayhew and Ince, part of a substantial commission for the 3rd Earl Darnley for his country seat Cobham Hall in Kent.

Apart from the seating furniture, a spectacular highlight is the pair of George II giltwood mirrors of circa 1750 ($150-250,000). These are attributed to Matthias Lock, who was described in contemporary accounts as 'the famous Matthias Lock, the most excellent wood carver.' The elaborate frames, carved with wonderful dramatic masks, relate closely to his published designs.

Russian Works of Art

Van Cliburn's encounters with Russia, its history and its people led to mutual admiration, connected by a love of great art and beauty. His collection of Russian Works of Art is a true testament to this unending relationship. The collection is comprised of objects that Van Cliburn personally selected, reflecting Russia's rich cultural history, which spans from the early 19th to early 20th centuries. Represented by some of the finest silversmiths and suppliers to the Russian Imperial Court, including Fabergé and Nicholls & Plincke, the works include some notable Imperial commissions, such as the dowry services of Olga and Maria Nikolaevna, the daughters of Emperor Nicholas I.

Silver

The silver in the Van Cliburn Collection reflects both the passion of the connoisseur and the lifestyle of the sophisticated host. The most striking facet of the Cliburn Collection is the superb assemblage of works by Paul Storr, the greatest English goldsmith of the Regency period. Led by the magnificent pair of candelabra bearing London hallmarks for 1810 (pictured below), the Storr group includes objects suitable for the grandest entertainments anywhere in the world.
