Georgiana Aitken, Director and Head of Antiquities, Christie's London and G.Max Bernheimer, International Head of Antiquities: "The sale was solid and demonstrates the strength of the market for well-provenanced works from private collections. There was a notable increase in activity from private clients which is reflected in the top three lots of the sale. Buying was truly international, with Europeans and Americans competing for most of the top lots and some aggressive bidding from Latin America and Asia. We had 81 online registrants, with 27% of lots being bought or directly underbid on Christies Live. We are particularly pleased with the result for the cover lot and overall sculpture proved to be the most popular category in the sale, a stunning Roman marble head of Dionysos sold exceptionally well, realising £84,100 against a pre-sale estimate of £18,000-22,000. We look forward to the June sale in New York."
